CROSSING THE BAR

poem by
Alfred, Lord Tennyson

set to music by
Alan Gray

VOCAL SCORE
This score is in the Public Domain and has No Copyright under United States law. Anyone is welcome to make use of it for any purpose. Decorative images on this score are also in the Public Domain and have No Copyright under United States law. No determination was made as to the copyright status of these materials under the copyright laws of other countries. They may not be in the Public Domain under the laws of other countries. EHMS makes no warranties about the materials and cannot guarantee the accuracy of this Rights Statement. You may need to obtain other permissions for your intended use. For example, other rights such as publicity, privacy or moral rights may limit how you may use the material. You are responsible for your own use. http://rightsstatements.org/vocab/NoC-US/1.0/

Text written for this score, including project information and descriptions of individual works does have a new copyright, but is shared for public reuse under a Creative Commons Attribution NonCommercial (CC BY-NC 4.0 International) license. https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc/4.0/

Cover Image: “Lunar Night” by Ivan Aivazovsky, 1857
The “renaissance” in English music is generally agreed to have started in the late Victorian period, beginning roughly in 1880. Public demand for major works in support of the annual choral festivals held throughout England at that time was considerable which led to the creation of many large scale works for orchestra with soloists and chorus.

Although a number of those works were engraved, printed and are regularly performed today, performance scores for a considerable number of compositions, both large-scale and more intimate works, are not available. These works were either never engraved or were engraved and printed but are no longer available in the publishers’ catalogues. While the existence of these works is documented in biographies of the composers, the ability to study and, most importantly, to perform these compositions is not possible.

Changes in the International copyright laws, coupled with changing musical tastes, played a pivotal role in creating this void. As a result, music publishers lost the ability to generate revenue from the sale/rental of such music. In 1964, holograph and copyist scores from both Novello and from publishers it represented were offered to the British Library and the Royal College of Music Library (see The RCM Novello Library – The Musical Times, Feb. 1983 by Jeremy Dibble). These autograph full score manuscripts along with copies of engraved vocal scores, widely available through various online library sources, are now the only resources available for studying and performing these works.

The English Heritage Music Series has been created to ensure that these compositions are preserved, are accessible for scholarly research and, most importantly, are available for performance by future generations. Its mission is to:

- Source non-engraved/out-of-print English composer compositions that are in the U.S. public domain
- Preserve these compositions through the preparation of performance scores using notation software
- Provide open Internet access to the scores to facilitate study, performance and sharing of performance material (program notes, audio, reviews, etc.)

In preparing the English Heritage Music Series editions, every effort has been made to adhere strictly to the notation contained in the manuscripts. Because of the passage of time and its effect on the condition of the manuscript, the absence of clear information often times by the composer in notating divided instruments, and with emendations in the composer and other hands resulting from use of the manuscript in performance, there were numerous circumstances which required interpretation and decisions for notes, accidentals, dynamics, articulations and tempi. Should questions arise in the use of these editions, the composers’ autograph manuscripts and the Novello vocal scores should be consulted for clarification.

Matthew W. Mehaffey
Editor
Professor of Music
University of Minnesota - School of Music
Minneapolis, Minnesota   USA

Source Information

Autograph Manuscript:
Given by composer to the Master of Trinity College, Cambridge in August 3, 1931. Copy of manuscript used for this engraving provided by Philip Brunelle from his private library

Vocal Score:
No known engraving

Manuscript Transcription & Score Preparation
David Fielding - dhcfielding@charter.net

Reference Material and Software

"Crossing the Bar" is an 1889 poem by Alfred, Lord Tennyson. It is considered that Tennyson wrote it in elegy; the narrator uses an extended metaphor to compare death with crossing the "sandbar" between the river of life, with its outgoing "flood", and the ocean that lies beyond [death], the "boundless deep", to which we return.

Tennyson is believed to have written the poem (after suffering a serious illness) while on the sea, crossing the Solent from Aldworth to Farringford on the Isle of Wight. Separately, it has been suggested he may have written it on a yacht anchored in Salcombe, where there is a moaning sandbar. "The words", he said, "came in a moment". Shortly before he died, Tennyson told his son Hallam to "put 'Crossing the Bar' at the end of all editions of my poems".

The poem contains four stanzas that generally alternate between long and short lines. Tennyson employs a traditional ABAB rhyme scheme. Scholars have noted that the form of the poem follows the content: the wavelike quality of the long-then-short lines parallels the narrative thread of the poem.

The extended metaphor of "crossing the bar" represents travelling serenely and securely from life through death. The Pilot is a metaphor for God, whom the speaker hopes to meet face to face. Tennyson explained, "The Pilot has been on board all the while, but in the dark I have not seen him...[He is] that Divine and Unseen Who is always guiding us."

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Crossing_the_Bar
CROSSING THE BAR

Composed for the unveiling of the statue of Tennyson in Trinity Chapel, Cambridge - October 19, 1909

Alfred, Lord Tennyson
1889

Alan Gray
1908

Andante

Soprano

Alto

Tenor

Bass

For Rehearsal Only

Sun-set and evening star, And one clear call for me! And Sun-set and evening star, And one clear call, And one clear call for me! And Sun-set and evening star, And one clear call, one clear call for me! And

Sun-set and evening star

And one clear call for me

may there be no moaning of the bar, When I put out to

may there be no moaning of the bar, When I put out to

may there be no moaning of the bar, When I put out to no moaning of the bar, When I, when I put out to

may there be no moaning of the bar, When I put out to sea, ______ But such a tide ______ as moving seems a-sleep, Too full for sound and foam, When that ______ which drew from out the

poco sonore
may there be no sadness of farewell, When I, when I embark;

Poco più animato

bark; For tho' from out our bourne of cresc. bark; For tho' from out our bourne of Time, of cresc. bark; For tho' from out our bourne of Time and

For tho' from out our bourne of
When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have

When I have